

Thinking about....

God's Judgement

God decides what is right and wrong, and his judgement is wise and good.

- God is in charge, like a king sitting on a throne.
- He makes the rules, and his rules are good ones.
- God judges whether what we do is in line with his rules or not. Whenever we are unkind or unfair, or we don't love ourselves and other people as much as God does, then we are not keeping his rules.
- God is loving and fair, and his rules are loving and fair. When we don't keep them, he can't just say it doesn't matter.

Did you know?

All of us are guilty of breaking God's rules.

But in Jesus, God says, "This is how much it matters." And he invites us to be forgiven, free from guilt about breaking his rules, and we can start again.

What next?

You could...

- Make a throne. Use building blocks or draw a picture. Think about God being in charge.
- Make a cross, or colour one in. Reflect on God's invitation to be forgiven.
- Take some Play Doh. Make something. Squash it and make something else. Think about when you do anything wrong, God can forgive you and you can start again.
